What Is In Our Woburn High School Yearbook...

As time trickles away like the sand in a hourglass, the memories of our lives fade into another chapter of history. However, a yearbook is a physical token that can revitalize the past. It is the window back to a time of former glories and forgotten joys, of lighter hearts and youthful outlooks. It can make you smile, laugh, cry, and blush all at the same time. A yearbook is a time capsule to cherish and to keep. It is a statement to future generations of your life, your views, and your world as you lived it.

This year's Innitou is no different. The title itself is a testament to remembrance. Derived from an early Native American tribe called the Massachusetts, Innitou means "Looking Place of the Great Spirit." Lake Innitou, now known as Horn Pond, reflects Horn Pond Mountain, or Mount Towanda as it used to be known. The mountain was the resting place for their god Manitou. Since it was considered holy grounds, untouchable for mortal feet, the reflection of his resting place in the lake was their keepsake of their great creator. The name has been passed on to our yearbook as a way to remember our heritage as we leave behind a new special piece of our own.

Innitou is beyond a picture book. It is a historic record of our four years in high school. It contains our class, the last class to walk the stoic halls of the old Woburn High School. The old school housed all twelve principals over a span of nearly 157 years and saw such turbulent times as both World Wars and the Great Depression. It had seen class sizes as small as eleven students, consisting of ten girls and one boy, to classes as large as 750. It cost the taxpayers millions of dollars, but due to Woburn's increasing population and the dilapidated, archaic state of the school, a new one was issued to be constructed. As we receive our diplomas, we can only hope that the new school will grow in character as our old one once did.

This year's Innitou is unique and extraordinary because of all the dedication and exertions our class has added to it. Our athlete's loss of blood and sweat, our artist's passion and flare, and our scholar's tears and overwrought brains have aided Woburn High in becoming a bit more diverse and that much more spectacular. Not to mention, for the first time in our school's history, these memories will be brought to you in full color!

So put up your feet in your most comfortable chair, crack the binding and turn the pages of your high school career. Let the memories begin...and keep the tissue box near.

Special Recognition

Robert C. Norton

We, the Class of 2009, give special recognition to Mr. Robert C. Norton. Mr. Norton became principal of our school in 1993. He became the twelfth principal to lead Woburn High School since our school began in 1852. He was in the unique position of being principal as we made the transition from the old Woburn High to the new Woburn Memorial High School. Mr. Norton also lead us through two New England Association of Schools and Colleges Accreditation visits. The first visit resulted in the City of Woburn voting for a new high school and a new elementary school.

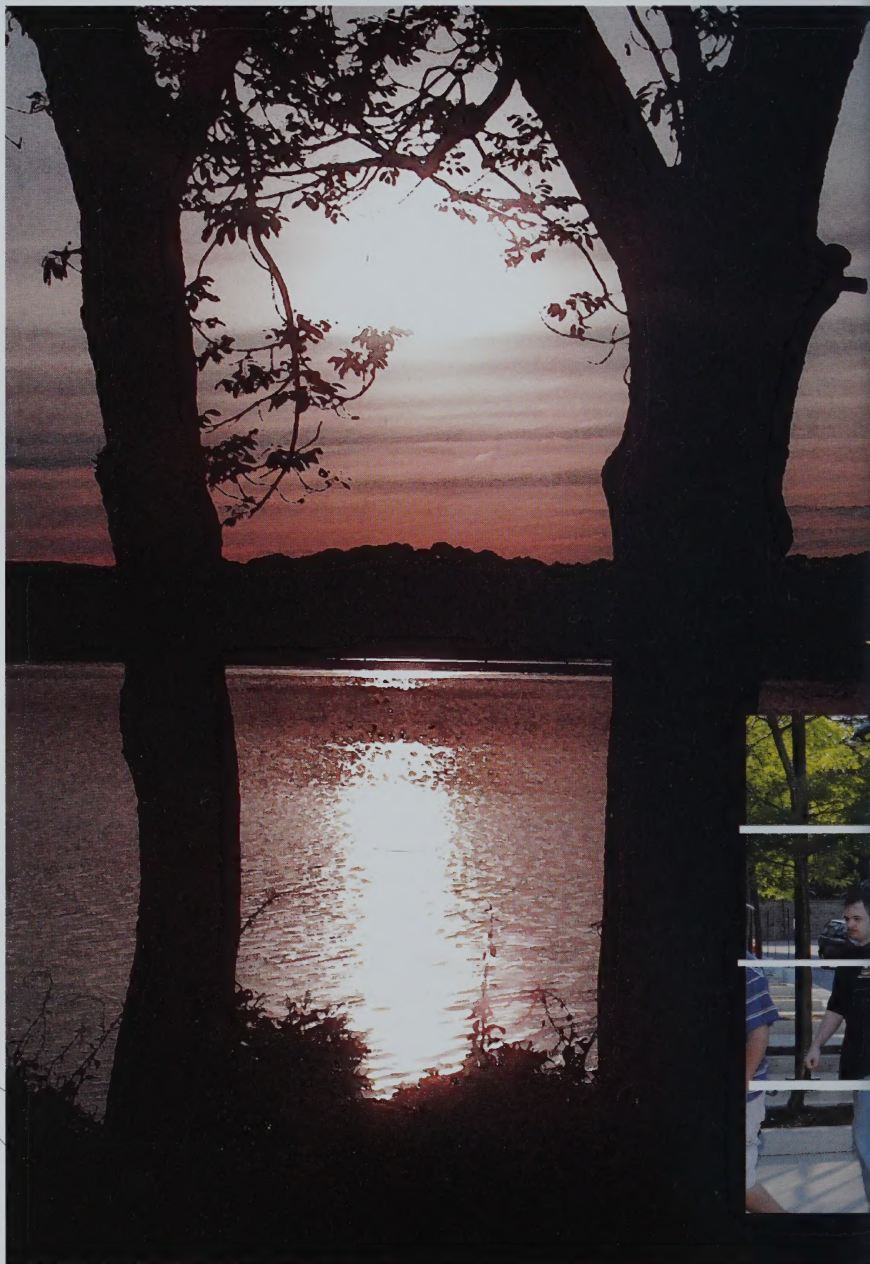

It was evident from the first week of school that he was going to be a visible principal. Mr. Norton could often be seen eating lunch with the students, walking the halls or visiting classrooms. He was very well know in the city and attended many local community group functions. Mr. Norton was a former athlete and continues to be an avid sports fan. He was a true advocate for the students.

The students sincerely appreciated it when he attended their games, musicals, or awards banquets. Mr. Norton has shown leadership, commitment, and dedication to Woburn High and will always have "Tanner Pride" in his heart. Thank you for leading our school and being supportive and understanding to the students, staff, and community of Woburn. We will truly miss you!

The Morning of... seni

“it was my life...”

“It was my life and it was fun...”

ors

It was early in the morning. I was scurrying about frantically trying to get ready as I felt the breezy fresh air rush into my room from the window. The sun was shining and they day seemed to be a promising one. I could hear my mother in the background calling upstairs to me. She kept telling me that it was time to leave. "Today's the big day," was all I could hear her saying. It was time to graduate high school and move on with the next part of my life. In ten short minutes I would be stepping through the entrance of Woburn Memorial High School for one last time. I had been having this same dream over and over again for the past few weeks. I kept envisioning myself holding my diploma, standing next to my friends. This had been the day I kept dreaming about, until finally I realized that it was not just a dream anymore. Graduation day come. I had survived high school. It was crazy to look back on the last eighteen years of my life. I had experienced so much in only a few years. As I looked at myself in the mirror, dressed in my cap and gown, I thought back to what life used to be like when I was a child. Back then, I dreamed of fairy tale endings and my biggest fear was the monster under my bed. My days consisted of running around the house with my cousins or going outside and playing hide-and-go-seek with my friends. School was a breeze. I will never forget my favorite kindergarten teacher, or the teddy bear picnic I had in first grade. Elementary school was a time where I made my first real friends, some of whom I know I will be friends with for the rest of my life. Once middle school started, I felt older and more mature. By the time high school came around, I was ready to take on the world. However, as I anxiously walked through the doors of Woburn High freshman year, it was like a whole new world. At first it was scary, an I got lost all the time. Eventually, I became a pro at navigating myself through the school, finding different hallways here and there that made it easier to get to class. I fell into my own small clique as I began making new friends while still keeping the old ones. When sophomore year hit, I was in a brand new school all over again. All I could remember thinking, as I spent that first long day in the new school, was how much I missed the old one and the character that it possessed. I was proud to know that I had been a part of the last class to ever attend the old high school, a privilege that I will never forget. My junior year was unlike anything I had experienced before. The stress was on as I began to contemplate what I wanted to do with homework, and every week I used to count down the days until it was Friday. Thinking back however, I was amazed at how fast junior year had flown by. My senior year had proved to be a strenuous one. From AP classes to college essays, there was scarcely enough time for a social life. Still, I worked hard and made it through. Before I knew it, I was getting ready and grabbing my date for senior prom. It had been wonderful to see everyone having fun together as the class of 2009. Reflecting on these precious memories as I stood in my room, I realized that all of my high school success was about to be laid out before me at the graduation ceremony. I had finally made it. It was a feeling unlike any other. I was about to go to school and share the auditorium with my fellow classmates for one last time. After that, only time could tell. Our lives and our futures would be forever more unpredictable, to be determined at another time...and another place...

Remember the time when you actually thought the stork brought you to your parents? Yeah, let us take a look back to your first couple of years. From rosy-cheeked, big-eyed babies to devilish smiling rascals, how could the adults resist us? Sure we all started out as constantly drooling, wobbly walkers that liked to smash our food into our parents' best furniture. Sure we proudly graduated to wall canvas crayon artists that sucked our thumbs so much we cost our parents thousands in dental. Okay, so we broke grandma's china, freaked out in stores, and threw hateful words at our parents. We got better, right? Did we not look cute as we skipped or raced to our first day of school, a communal sigh of relief heaved in our wake?

Ah yes, and then there was elementary school. Remember when classes were about coloring within the borders? Do not forget to write your name neatly within the inch-sized lines. Then there were the serious classes on adding one plus one, learning how to spell words, how to eat a balanced meal, and of course the fun guest speakers that pretended to be famous people. Remember when we had two recesses? Remember when teachers started weaning us away from recesses? Can you list all the names of your elementary teachers? Do you remember the "pinky swear"? Do you remember playing Pokémon? Do you still have your trading cards in your room somewhere? Come on...we promise not to tell.

But as soon as the bells rang in our elementary schools, it was off to play again. For some it was the beginning of their athletic career with tee-ball, soccer, and various other sports

For others, it was a time to sit in front of the TV and watch favorite shows like Blues Clues, Nickelodeon's Face, the Muppets, SpongeBob Squarepants, and a multitude of others.

Take a minute as innocence blossoms into maturity once again, look back and smile at your ridiculous, foolish, adorable, little, old self.

once upon a time...

Remember when we could not wait to get outside for recess to meet up with our friends and play games like kickball and red rover? When our desks were set up in little groups? When our homework consisted of coloring in pictures or practicing our names? When for every holiday we would show off our singing talents for our parents and grandparents? These were the simple times when our only worry was if we could convince our parents to let us stay outside for just five more minutes before we were forced to go in and eat dinner.

Starting off in two different worlds, half of us came from the Kennedy Middle School and the other half came from the Joyce Middle School.

In middle school, we had awesome school dances and fun field days. These were the years when we all acted goofy and did not have any worries. We would go out to eat after dances and we would have play dates. Now, the middle school years are over...and are united as one.

Oh God, here comes the preteens. For most, it was a time of developing one's identity. For the others, they will never grow up. It was the time where a structured curriculum and the dreaded MCAS tests were shoved down our throats. But that is not to say the fun times were lost on this new level of schooling. For instance, the harmless pranks pulled on teachers and each other kept us laughing for days on end. You know, the one involving the tack and chair and ...oops! Guess that was still taboo.

Technology wise, cell phones were just starting to take off in our generation and the new Gameboy defined who was "in" and who was "out." And speaking of "ins" and "outs," Middle School was about the time where our class really formed...the cliques, oh yes.

Were you sporty or were you nerdy? Were you a fashionista or were you a punk?

Middle School was a blast, was it not? Just out from the starting gates but not exactly in the big leagues yet. Old enough to act cool and sophisticated, but just young enough to rely on double-dares and cross-my-heart-and-hope-to-dies. It was the time where drama involved simple crushes that formed quickly and dissolved even faster. It was the time where girls cracked into their makeup and boys cracked into their voices. Yes, the term Middle School really fit this period of our lives because it was a time of growing up and letting go . Goodbye Barney, Little Bear, Barbie and Beanie Babies. Hello Maroon 5, NSYNC, Backstreet Boys , Pink and Hollywood!

climbing the beanstalk

Goodbye, adios, adieu, ciao, auf wiedersehen, aloha, sayonara, and farewell. Oh, old Woburn High School, I knew thee well. Your time had come, you had served your purpose. Your beautiful architecture and wonderful historic feeling gave a form of character and integrity. From the trees slithering into and out of the roof to the falling ceiling tiles, your labyrinth of hallways made an adventurous safari out of walking to and from classes. You held mysteries of yore with your infamous boiler room to the cell-like classrooms in the basement of seventh building. From your never ending staircases to your dingy locker rooms, from your leaking gym to your double auditorium, you left us with a multitude of memories. Should we forget your ABC lunch schedule and the fact that your buildings were numbered instead of lettered? Should we forget that silly senior prank that let loose the hamsters, fish, and frogs? Oh no, we shall forget naught

Rest in peace under your blanket of asphalt and soil.

Keep with you the echoing footsteps of frivolity long passed. Put to sleep your demolished body and dream.

Dream of your final graduated freshman class. You shall never be forgotten. Rest in peace.

there once was a school

Looking at these photos reveals a side of the Old School most did not see...the pride. From Neo-Renaissance masonry to the glass house extension, it was a school that had a timeless feel.

Remember the branches getting in your hair. Having a ball in the snow. Hustling down the black-and-orange locker halls, and lastly, the final grand exit from the majestic doorway of knowledge.

Freshman year was the time where we were just figuring out high school, our first dance and our first sports team. Life never seemed so simple, our futures ever so bright.

It was the big day, the stupendous day, the petrifying, goose-flesh tingling ultimate day of our lives...and the beginning of high school. Oh, what a sight it was to see that old Woburn High School looming closer into view as we traveled by bus, car, or foot. Expectations could be checked in at the front doors as the feeling of superiority burst into our chests. We were high school students now, FRESHMEN! The student body was oceans bigger than what we were used to. Classrooms were buildings away and traversing the hallways was never tougher as we clutched our books and scrambled to find our way. Maps were worthless and the upperclassmen took malicious delight in sending us in the wrong direction. But at length we got the beat high school was playing and began making out own steps to its groove.

Freshman year was just plain fun. Once we were excellent scouts, we deviously trekked through the boiler-room cutoff and the seventh building basement. We also watched as our class reinvented itself. Cliques solidified as others cracked, new friends were made as others were realized as frauds. It was a time of maturing and exploring the people around us as well as ourselves. To aid in our self-discovery were the many character building clubs and challenging sports now available for sign up. It was a time to find out what you were good at and maybe find a new hobby. It was a time where athletes toned up, scholars advanced in academics, the shy blossomed into social butterflies, and our individualities were appreciated.

Freshman year was the year our school won successive victories in various sports. Our Tanner Football Team won triumphantly in the Super Bowl. Our Ice Hockey ladies pulverized the competition in the Middlesex League Championships. Racing passed the challengers, our Boys' Cross Country team and Indoor Track stars seized the gold. And last but not least, our Girls' Softball team and Golf team swung it home to add to our trophy case.

We entered Woburn High as rival middle school students and became the gallant Class of 2009. Together in arms by the end of the year, we were wiser and more mature personally ...and totally ready to spread the rumors of the infamous pool on the fourth floor to the next batch of freshmen!

rabbit hole wonderland

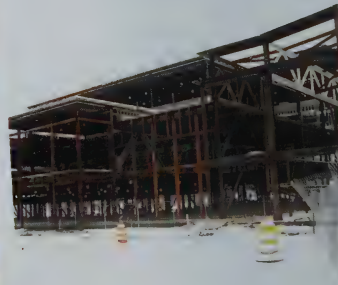

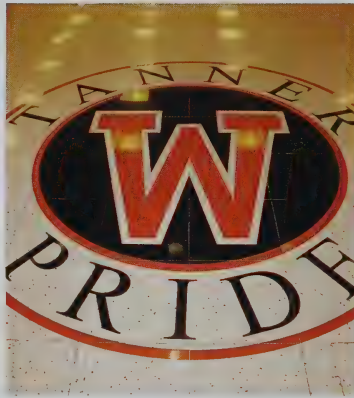

Modern. Pristine. Sterile. Undefined. Possibilities. Terror. Excitement. The new high school was all that and a bag of Cheetos. Four floors and eight buildings made some unfortunate students have quite a hike everyday from lesson to lesson. Though the floor plans technically said that the school had eight buildings, we found out quickly that only five were buildings and the other three were walls. YES, WALLS! Yet this just made the school itself kooky and fun. And with a school built and designed by the same architects who make prisons, you have to learn to laugh at the ironic jokes life pulls on you.

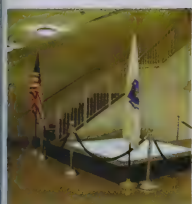

Remember the halls where people stopped short or formed human barriers that caused huge corridor blockages. Remember the hassle of the computers that decided to work occasionally with your pin number and blocked you from all the fun sites. Remember the times the teachers cursed the uncooperative, beeping laptops that prevented whole activities from being taught. Remember the somehow incredibly small cafeteria and the beautiful state-of-the-art auditorium. Remember the decorative fireplace in the main office and the fact that attendance had to be run up to the fourth floor. But in the end just remember. As much as most loved the old school, it was the new one that gave our class new choices, new chances, and new stories that past generations were not lucky enough to have and future generations will not appreciate.

the crystal castle

Ah, the glistening trophies of victory. What a sight the first football game on our own turf was!

Do you remember the dances held in the main foyer?

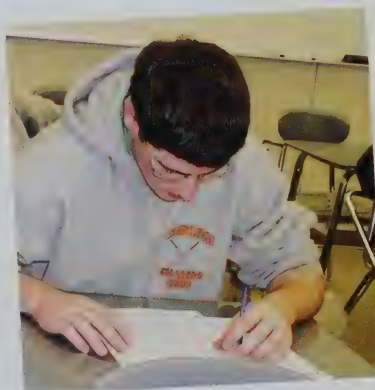

What a hassle all those spiraling stairways were!

But in the end, what a pleasure to have been a part of such a marvelous school.

Sophomore year is when we were all thrown into a new school. We all felt lost and no one could find their classes.

We were the first to eat in the new cafeteria and experience the new technologies. We were all excited but at the same time we all deep down missed the old high school.

Back to square one in the new Woburn High School, we had to put back on the hiking boots and chart out our schedules once more. This time though we were the sophomores. Hooray to more privileges! Hooray to permits! Hooray to new iPods and jobs! Hooray to new responsibilities, the last MCAS tests, and the start of vATs! Sophomore year was definitely a time to further branch out and experience the fresh opportunities available.

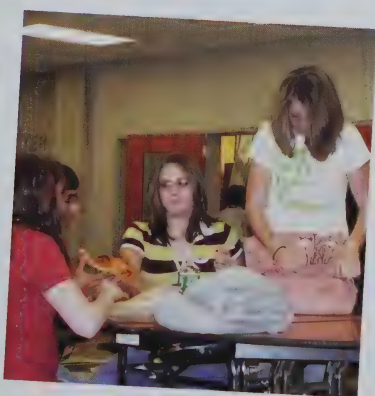

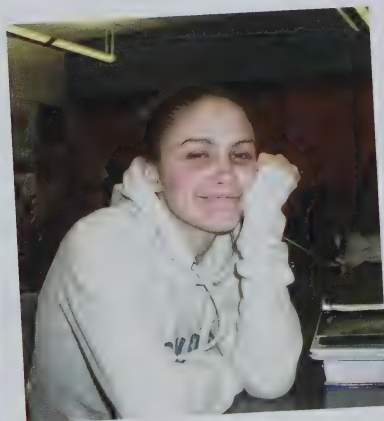

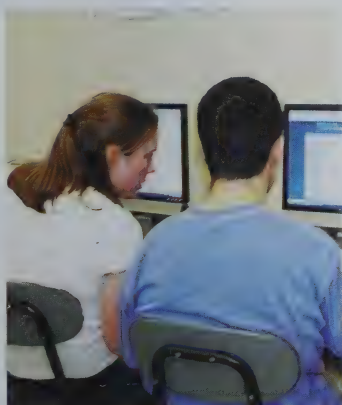

For the academic entrepreneurs, AP classes were now open in the fields of science and history. Math and Science teams were starting to look less geeky as the chance to attain needed extra credit points were dangled before us. For our club enthusiasts, the Halloween Parade, Walk-A-Thon, Eclipse Ball Tournament and other events run by the Leo and Key clubs could be tried out and repeated in future years. For those of us too shy or embarrassed to do the Lip Sync freshman year, now was the time to bust a move on the new upgraded stage. As older sport stars moved on to college, our athletes were now able to bask in more of the celebratory praises and cheers. And for our drama queens out there, the Cinderella play turned out spectacular! One of our very own was even part of the main cast, sashaying out her fairy godmother lines with the aplomb of a professional.

Like every year, our sophomore one was full of new beginnings, new friendships, and new choices. We found our strengths, admitted our faults, and developed one step further in becoming the person we can be smug about today.

ducklings turned into swans

One would think that as you went up the ladder of academia that our troubles would be less. There were only the seniors above us and we were ready to kick them out of their seats and put on their shoes. We were ahead of two other classes who were the butts of many of our jokes and vexations. Life should have been sweet with the enjoyment that our high school years were almost over and our college ones were looming in the near future. SAY WHAT!?!

What do you mean my high school years are almost over! What do you mean I have to take these SAT's soon! Where are my keys, I need to get to work and start saving for college. Oh my God, where is that scholarship form? Do I have enough sport/club activities? Maybe I need to work on my grades a bit more. As these thoughts as well as others swirled in our heads, our blood pressures rose to new heights as the adults probed us for life altering answers. What colleges are you think ing about? Have you taken any campus tours? Are you thinking of retaking the SAT's? Are you going to go to college right away or are you going to work first? What are your plans? What are your goals? What are you majoring in? Do you have the teachers who will write your recommendations in mind? Who, what, when, where, why how, maybe you should—ENOUGH! Let us catch our breath!

it's off to junior year we go

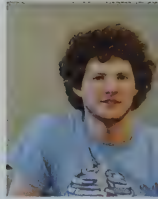

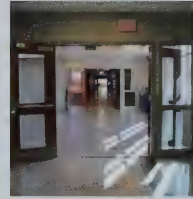

Thanks for the thumbs up, Ashley!

Fun times are being had with Molly, Alex, Rob, and John. Why did no one invite me?

Junior year had crazy times, hard work on the laptops, and instances where we just wanted to throw up our hands and say "I don't know!"

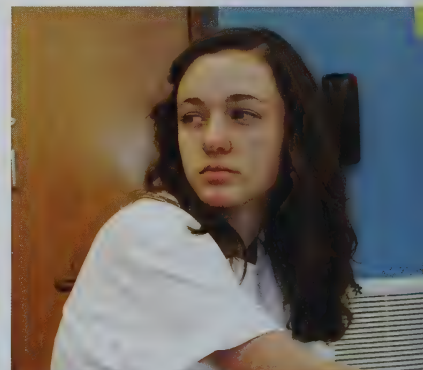

Aw, look at all the fun shots. Love the heart
Toni and Angie.

Jazzy and Priynk trying to count?

No sleeping in class Chris!

Great smiles everyone. No one will ever know that we threatened you for them.

But even as our parents and teachers pack on a suffocating amount of work and our minds nearly melted down with the stress, we survived. Equipped with only our tenacity and courage, we took on our third year of high school. We climbed when we had to climb. We relaxed when we could relax. We enjoyed our friends and dealt with the drama that comes inevitably with the changing seasons.

For some, the legendary tyrannical teachers of the school were given our precious grade point averages to control. The strong overcame them and the obstinate ignored them. Either way, those teachers were conquered and those students were able to walk more proudly down the graduation aisle. The other students can just sigh in relief that they never had them.

Our clubs had surplus attendance as the incessant need for extra credit was now matched up with the need to show diversity in our pursuits for college. And speaking of clubs, it was the first year where our class had the majority of main roles in the Beauty and the Beast theater production. They all did a marvelous job, especially during the beast hunt scene where performers jumped off the stage as an angry horde and marched around the audience.

Who can forget the light saber LeFou used in battle or the frantic dress changes of Belle? The audience was entertained and delighted and left waiting for next year's performance.

Junior year was no picnic stroll. It was the beginning of college fever that meant pulling extra shifts at work as well as doing double the number of clubs. It was a time where we started focusing on our scholastic resume and ventured out to make ourselves more desirable on paper. We survived and in the end were thrilled at the prospect of an intimidating senior year.

flying to neverland

It had started like every other day. Packing up the backpack, gulping down breakfast and off you went to school. But that day had a different feel to it. There was excitement in the air, a tangible clock was sounding in our ears and it ticked so slowly. Come on. Move, time, move! Then suddenly the school day ended, the bell rang and everything became helter-skelter. Where is the brush? Where is my tie? Does my dress still look good on me? Where is that limo???

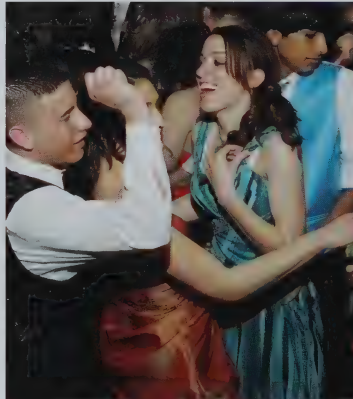

The day had ended and it was junior prom night with high racing emotions. At the Hillside Country Club, everyone arrived like a movie star either from limos or from their parents' cars. Embraces were plentiful and everyone was ecstatic and chatting. Though the lines were long for pictures, most tried to push the inconveniences aside and enjoy the moment. The club was crowded and small, making dancing interesting and everyone feel connected. The girls' outfits were gorgeous, the boys looked ever so handsome. When dancing was no longer an option, the tables were filled and the jokes were spread. There was questionable butter that looked like cheese and edible flowers dared into being consumed.

Even though there were some disappointments to be had, as in the weird assortment of songs played, there was still a multitude of memories made that will either make one blush or grin when looking back.

we were given glass slippers

That is some close dancing there. I think we need to call the morality cops.

It is time for a dance everyone knows. Get in line and start hopping!

Why do the boys look like better dancers? They seem to be really into it.

I have never seen so many kids together for an event....and actually enjoying themselves.

You spell senior S-E-N-I-O-R! Say it loud, say it proud! Move over graduates and let the new kids rule the school.

Who says we are not creative? Look at these chic shirts. Come on, strike a pose and give us some attitude.

So many smiling faces...is that because behind them lie some devilish deeds?

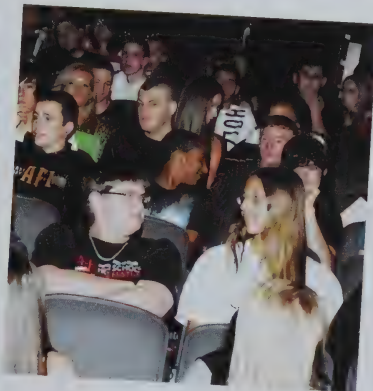

Alright! Move Up Day! That is right Freshman, move out of my way! With the seniors gone and barely three classes below us for the day, it was officially the commencement of our reign of the school. Wearing our decorative "Seniors of 2009" shirts, we strutted our tough stuff all around and joked with our teachers on our making it on to another year.

Yet in a way it was still the same old, same old routine. From the crueler teachers, there was summer homework to be given out. For all, it would be a day to inevitably bring upon a trip to Staples to refresh our stocks of supplies. If we tripped up the stairs a few times, we had the experience to know how to cover it up by now. If our college anxiety panic attack hit us, we shrugged it off for next year. But for just that day, we could experience the first and maybe only carefree day of being a senior.

It was even a day of some sadness. Here was the taste of the end, a bittersweet reminder that at long last we were reaching the end of high school. One more year to go...that was all we had left. One more year to branch out our interests, one more year to try something new with classmates we have grown closer with, one more year was all we had remaining. But all good things have to come to an end and it was not the time for tears. This was the beginning for now...the end would come too soon, too fast. So we all smiled and laughed and acted as outrageously as any respectable future senior would!

just can't wait to be king

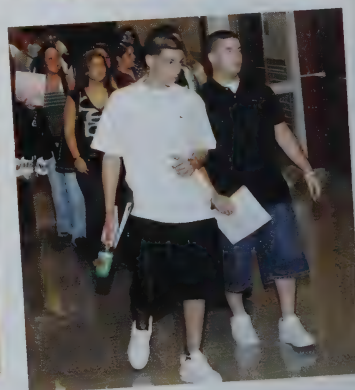

Phew, we made it. At long last... WE'RE SENIORS!!! Oh, how the pangs of our summer being over ran through our tanned and lassitude bodies.

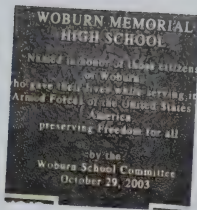

This was the first day of the final year of our high school scholastic careers and it should be celebrated. Only the most dedicated teachers tried to begin teaching that day, but they had little or no success. So what if now we were finalizing our college plans and had to start scouring for teacher recommendations? So what if there was a bubbling panic attack floating in the back of our minds? It would be one of the few care-free days we had to wave our senior status around before our noses would be shoved to the grindstone.

Do I want a stressful last year?
I think a trip to the guidance counselor is needed, I do not like my schedule. Oh, do not even mention that "ten percent of your first quarter grade" test to me. La la la la la la la, I am not listening. Why did summer end so soon? Oh, just send me to college now. No, make this year last longer. The contemplations of our minds revolved sluggishly as we got back into the groove of being in school. Unlike our first few years, the school was now charted. The mysteries were all gone. Some of our favorite teachers were now retired and our reputations were all set. Though drama and personal victories awaited behind a year unlived, it was as it always had been...the same wonderful high school that had been our second home.

{ a whole new world }

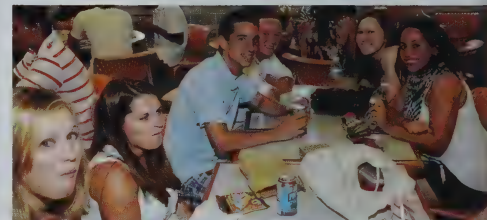

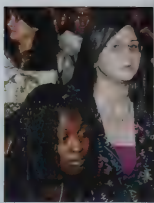

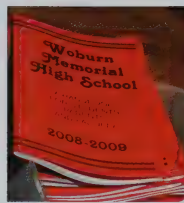

Ah, the smell of new books and the weight of books piling on our backs. Yes, what a glorious first day of school.

Is that food in the hallway I see? Where is a responsible teacher when you need one?

Everyone looks so happy. Does no one remember that their summer projects and homework are due now? Do not forget that test that is set to be taken....tomorrow.

But raise up your hands and hoot. We are seniors now, time to rule this school.

No play time for them, they do not even have time for lunch. Look at the homework being shared.....wait a minute.

What is with the hands in the air? Are you trying to catch someone or warn others to run for cover?

Enjoy the ease while you have it, enjoy the ease.

So now the hourglass was finally being turned. The sands began to silently and rapidly dwindle away. But now was the time to grasp the title of ownership of the school and be merry. It was only the first day. It was the day to begin thinking about the infamous senior prank. It was the day to commence the giving of wisdom to underclassmen. It was the day to put them in their places. It was the day to get back to climbing up three flights of stairs either all at once or in increments. It was the day to accept schedules again. It was the day to sigh and accept homework again. What a positively, absolutely perfect final first day of school.

It was not the time to think of lasts, but of nows. Now was the time to raise your head up and give it your all. Now was the time to make your final statement. Now was the time to leave behind something that was uniquely your own. Now was the time to either follow the rules for the final time or toss them to the wind. So many emotions coursed through us as we took the steps forward with fleeting glances back. So many opportunities were now closer to attainment. With this first start of the end, we were ready to soak up all that was around us one last time. We were seniors. We were the top dogs. We had finally made it.

This simple text cannot even begin to describe everyone's unique experiences, but just maybe it will help rekindle them.

Coming Together

“another season...”

“Another season of my life is done...”

One Last Time...

As I stepped out of the car and fixed my hair, I looked at the high school with a sense of wonder in my eyes. Never before had I appreciated the beauty and simplicity that existed in the school. I absorbed each part of the school attentively. This was the last time that I would ever be here. I wanted to memorize each facet so that I could carry the memory of this school with me for the rest of my life. Nerves began to overwhelm my senses as I looked ahead towards the other students and their families. Already the waterworks were starting as I caught sight of the many parents with tears falling down from their eyes. The excitement of the upcoming ceremony was almost too much to handle.

I began making my way towards the football field. Anticipation was building up as I stepped onto the field. I could hardly contain myself. The wind was sweeping gently across my face as I made my way across. The turf felt squishy beneath my feet. I caught sight of my friends, a bright smile emanating across my face. I walked as fast as my legs would allow me to until I was by their side. I hugged each one of them and said hello.

As I looked around the field, I saw all the different expressions on everyone's faces. For many this was a time for reflection as they realized that this was the end of their high school days. Others, however, I were jumping up and down, incapable of holding back their enjoyment, knowing that this was not the end, but the beginning of a new part of their lives. Then as I looked to my right I saw students with calm expressions on their faces, the excitement lingering in their eyes clearly visible as they tried to appear cool and collected. Nevertheless, the atmosphere was an emotional one. The field was a whirlwind of emotions that only intensified as the announcement was made for everyone to take their seats.

My heart was beating wildly as I took my place with my fellow classmates. This was the moment I had been waiting for. The ceremony was about to start. Before I knew it, I would be taking the stage and accepting my diploma for everyone to see. My classmates and I had waited for this moment for what seemed like a century. Now, as we prepared to start, each one of us is filled with pride. After all of our hard work, we were now able to bask in our success. We glanced about, looking at each other happily as reality set in that our time was here. Finally, it was our time to shine...

Graduation Wishes

*For every ending
there's a new beginning.
For every memory,
there's a dream ahead.
The happy times you've had so far,
the people you have met
will always be a part of life,
You'll never quite forget...
But ever better, brighter days
Are waiting just for you.
So dream your dreams...
and start in now
To make them all come true!*

The Lip Sync

The WMHS Lip Sync Show is put on annually by the Ski & Snowboard Club. It is usually held the last day of school before the Holiday break. However, this year due to the extreme weather and numerous snow days, it was pushed back until the end of January. This well-attended show highlights all of the talent at WMHS. Students and teachers alike have the chance to show off their singing and dancing skills for the whole school. The Lip Sync is a great source of entertainment and has proven to be quite enjoyable to all who choose to attend.

Many students really got into the acts.

Lots of dancing and singing went down throughout the show.

Many students enhanced their acts with costumes and props.

Life in New England

"Winter is the time for comfort, for good food and warmth, for the touch of a friendly hand and for a talk beside the fire: it is the time for home."

—Edith Sitwell

SPRING

Everyone knows that "April showers bring May flowers." That is certainly the case in New England. Not unlike any other season in New England, spring weather is forever changing. Going back and forth from sun to rain, each morning is a new weather adventure for New Englanders to embrace. Regardless of the weather, the new life that erupts from the ground during the spring is beautiful and full of fresh, exciting smells. Spring is a time to take in the beauty of the budding trees and blossoming flowers that are present around each corner. The spring is a representation of new chances and hope. The weather grows warmer as the season goes on. New Englanders shed their jackets and walk outside in tee shirts and jeans, ready to breathe in the fresh spring air.

"The sun was warm but the wind was chill.
You know how it is with an April day."

—Robert Frost

"Then followed that beautiful season... Summer....
 Filled was the air with a dreamy and magical light; and the landscape
 Lay as if new created in all the freshness of childhood."
 ~Henry Wadsworth Longfellow

SUMMER

Summer in New England is all about having fun, with days and nights that seem to never end. It is a time for New Englanders to travel on vacation and enjoy the fabulous weather. Summer in New England is sunny and hot. It is a time to bring out the summer clothes and embrace the shorts, tanks, flip flops, and bathing suits. New Englanders are able to travel to the mountains, the lake, or the sea depending on their preference. Hampton Beach, the perfect place to go on a day trip, less than an hour away for most New Englanders. Only a bit farther away are the beaches in Maine, ideal spots for vacationers to spend a week or two basking in the sun. Swimming pools, cookouts, and spending time with friends and family are classic summer activities. New Englanders are never bored during the summer. There is always a fun activity waiting to be done. Living on the coast, New England is the ideal spot for vacationers from all over the country to visit during the summer.

FALL

Fall in New England is a precious treasure that New Englanders get to experience each year. The New England foliage is one of the most spectacular sights in the country. Tourists from all over come to experience the foliage in New Hampshire and Vermont. It is a truly a beautiful picture. The leaves are gorgeous, falling in all sorts of captivating colors. The crisp fresh air is perfect for walks in the park, and the shining sun paints a lovely picture for a New England fall. Autumn in New England is a great time for families to spend a Sunday afternoon together playing outside or going apple picking, a typical New England tradition. The weather begins to cool down as New Englanders transition from the summer months and begin preparing for the winter. It is a time where New Englanders lose the shorts and flip flops, and switch into shoes and pants. Nevertheless, fall in New England is and always will prove to be a breathtaking sight.

"Everyone must take time to sit and watch the leaves turn."
 ~Elizabeth Lawrence

The Ceremony

“Another race I’m glad I got to run...”

Begins...

The sun was shining bright in my face as I took my place among my peers. Hearts thumping wildly, we awaited anxiously as the graduation ceremony began. All of the anxious thoughts that were running through my brain ceased to exist the second that the ceremony began. I listened intently as the introduction took place. I was still stuck on the fact that my graduation was taking place. I could not get past it. I was still in a state of shock. As the ceremony went on, the names began to be called. Immediately my heart began to flutter again. I watched from my seat as each student was called up to take their place on the stage. The time had come. We were receiving our diplomas. I simply could not believe it. Looking around at each student, I saw how far we had all come. As each person crossed the stage, a sense of dignity was present in each small step. Every person was individual. They all had something to offer. I sat in my seat as I watched my fellow scholars and athletes walk across the stage. It made me think back on all my favorite memories in high school. I remember how proud I felt as I attended my first high school football game freshman year. I had gone to many of the games before with my dad and cousins. However, for the first time, this was my team. I was officially a Woburn Tanner fan because I was finally apart of the school. I took pride in the fact that I could finally say, "Yeah, that's my team." Freshman year on, I took part in the high school sports. I went to practice each day, working hard and being pushed to my limit. Tanner sport practices gave definition to the words determination and perseverance. I attended games, and I was proud to show off my tanner spirit. There was nothing more thrilling than being at a playoff game, fans cheering loudly as the players raced against the clock to win the game. "Tanner Pride" was evident at every game I attended. Whether it was by holding up posters, wearing black and orange, or painting faces, the tanner pride was overwhelming at each and every game. There was a sense of unity every time we all stood together supporting our team. Our "Tanner Pride" radiated at every game as we stood there fingers crossed, praying for our team to win. Whether it was football, basketball, field hockey, or cross country, our tanner athletes worked hard. They were determined to do their best. Therefore, we stood by their side at every game to show our thanks for their persistancy. I took the memories with me from all of the games that I attended. Whether they were memories of triumph, or memories of defeat, they are ones that I will never forget...

Golf

This is ten percent luck

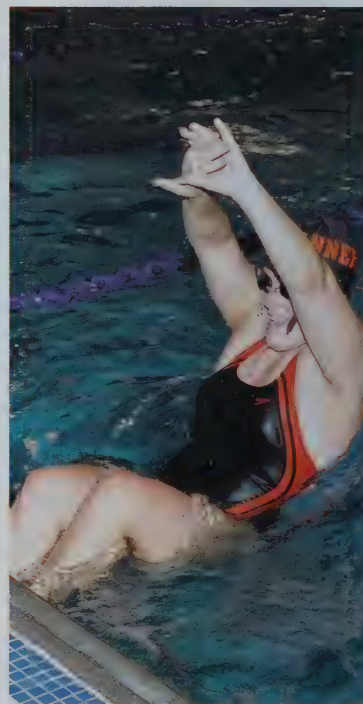

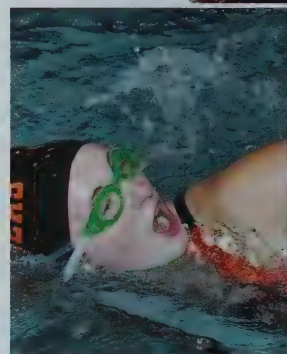

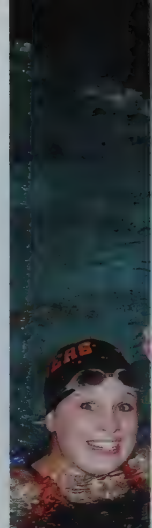

The silence is almost too peaceful as Dave checks the angle and trajectory of the golf ball. Mike, Gino, Tim and Joe watch anxiously as this is the determining factor of the match. He grips forcefully on the club, practices once and then pelts the tiny ball high into the air past the trees, sandbars, and lakes, landing just a half foot short of the hole. One stroke away from victory.

Woburn High's Golf Team has a legacy of being an outstanding team winning seven consecutive Middlesex League Championships for a total of sixteen wins in the last seventeen years. So it was not a surprise when this year's team continued the legacy this team has created. This team has bonded in way other teams cannot. They have excelled every year and only continue to get better.

"Clothes off, Caps on!!" the coach yells as Caitlin, Stephanie, Katelyn, Sonja, Meghin, Kelli, Brittney, Taylor, Molly, Kelly, Faith, and Jess scramble into the locker room to get ready. Everyone is getting fired up as the coach walks back in to read off the lineup and take part in the team chant. Anticipation builds up as they walk out into the pool area from the locker rooms. All worry is lost however as soon as they step onto the diving board and get into the zone, awaiting the start of the meet. Three-two-one-dive! As their bodies hit the icy cold water below they are home once again. The Girls Swim Team is known for being extremely close. From hanging out at pasta parties to having amazing times at practices, the girls always have a blast. Their determination and perseverance proves that their slogan "Just keep swimming" has more meaning than just another line from a Disney movie.

Boys & Girls Cross Country

15 percent concentrated power of will

As Tom and Enzo turn the corner onto Woburn Street for the final couple of yards of the race, closely followed by Nolan and Parth, it was obvious that this was going to be an easy win for the XC Boys. As the seniors sprint past the finish line Kaliegh, Kristina, Kaitlyn, Jamie, Andrea, and Laura, after another victorious win crushing their record from last year, are there cheering the boys on. Both the Girls and Boys Cross Country Teams have made impeccable bonds throughout this season that show during and outside of practice. Whether it is stealthy TP-ing (where still, no one knows who did it), pasta parties, adventurous runs through the woods, intense workouts, playing man-hunt instead of running base mileage, or just casually jumping in the pond after the last home meet, Cross Country never fails to have an awesome time. It is not all fun and games though; Cross Country has the reputation of needing the most focus, drive, and dedication of all the sports at Woburn High. The boys and girls have given it their all by meeting the standards of what it takes to run the sport that is known to be every other team's punishment.

Field Hockey five percent pleasure

Before the start of the game, Katie, A-Shea and Riley are called to the ref for a coin toss to predict the possession of the ball. Jenna, Kelly, Jess, Paula, and Amanda lead the team through warm ups before the stick check. The three captains come back declaring they won the coin toss. Now the whole team huddles up to say their inspirational quote and psych themselves up for the start of the game. The Field Hockey Team, as the season progressed, learned to adapt and work hard as a unit. Being the first team in 25 years to make the tournament, they have definitely made their mark on Woburn High and they live up to their team slogan, "She who has the will to win cannot be beaten". From their dance off pasta parties, singing on the bus rides and just having fun at practice, these girls have worked hard and deserve the bragging rights of setting the standards for years to come.

Boys Soccer fifty percent pain

The Boys Soccer Team is known for their hard work and dedication to the sport. Ryad, Steve, Pat, Edwidje, Marshall, Majid, Jovan, Doug, and the rest of their team give their all one hundred percent of the time throughout the season. Maybe it is the rivalry TP-ing, the crazy pasta parties, or the ping pong tournaments that bring them together. These boys master the art of being so well-connected on the field that they can sense where the other teammate is positioned. Whatever it is, these boys grew together, playing to the best of their abilities, and letting their hard work shine through their season.

Girls Soccer And a hundred percent reason to remember the name

The ref gives the game one minute left, as it currently stands at a 0-0 tie. Molly brings the ball up the sideline knowing that there is no time left for mistakes. She passes the ball up to Kryssie who crosses it to Toni. With the ref counting down from ten the pressure is building up. Toni dribbles the ball past the defense and up to the goalie; it is a one on one, the goalie daring her to kick the ball. She slams her foot into the ball sending it flying into the top right corner to win the game. At that moment the whistle blows to signal the end of the game. Kayla, Suzy, Gabby, Jill and Caroline run onto the field to greet their teammates in their glory of the victorious win. The Girls Team, living up to their crazy nature, always give off a "bring it on" kind of attitude, on and off the field. Whether it is hanging out at pasta parties, playing whisper and washers, belting out at karaoke night, or pool hoppin' at the boys soccer team's houses, the girls show off their insane personalities and make everything look effortless along the way.

Football dedicated to what they do

When you hear the word football you automatically think Friday night games, a new stadium to admire, and Tanner Pride. What we don't see is the skill, determination and drive these boys work for day in and day out. Somewhere between all of the pasta parties, Chamber's rappin', wrestling on trampolines, impressions, Breakers nights, and talks in the locker room, this team became a family. Shane, Gaines, Ryan, Jacques, Sean, Edgardo, Chambers, Steadman, Hansley, Sean, Kurt, Bobby, John, Jeff, Matt, Maxon, Derrick, Brandon, Danny, and the rest of their team would do anything for any one of their teammates and through this bond they have learned to play, work, practice, win, and lose as brothers. No matter the score, this team lives and breathes the self-discipline to give one hundred percent every time they step onto the field.

Lets get fired up

Fall Cheering and give a hundred percent.

Where would any team be without the support of its fans? Good thing Woburn High has two outstanding cheering teams to pump up the crowd and to support both the Boys Soccer and Football Teams. Shealene leads the Football cheerleaders and Rebecca, Madeline, Alison, Amanda, Michelle, Courtney, Ashley, Mary, Lacey, Jenn, Elyssa, and Jenn lead the Soccer Cheerleading. Both teams show off their dedication by creating posters, attending pasta parties and TP-ing the boys' houses. Behind the scenes both teams also excel at the competitive part of their sport, showing that it takes a lot more than being able to cheer competitive chants to roll with them.

Tanner Pride means...

"Let's Go Get It"

-Branden McMallister

"To me, Tanner Pride means going to all the games, whether the sun's shining or it's pouring, just to support your team."

-Jared Fallon

"Tanner Pride means having pride in our school and no matter what being able to represent Woburn everywhere we are."

-Kristen Gerety

"Tanner pride is B's to the W's every time!"

-Amanda Pappalardo

"Tanner Pride means supporting EVERY team. Wearing black and orange and playing on the field with a huge crowd. Tanner Pride means that you bleed black and orange."

Pain Train '09

The Powderpuff game was a traditional game played the week before Thanksgiving Break. It is a Senior vs. Junior Girls flag-football game. Each team had five coaches from the Varsity Football Team. This event was a great way to bring all of the girls and their coaches in both grades together to compete over which class is better.

The Class of '09 just happens to be undefeated, winning both our Junior and Senior years. As Seniors we defended our title as top of the school by destroying the Juniors 42-7.

Huddling up before the big game.

That's right. Seniors owned.

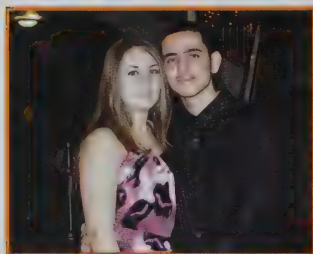

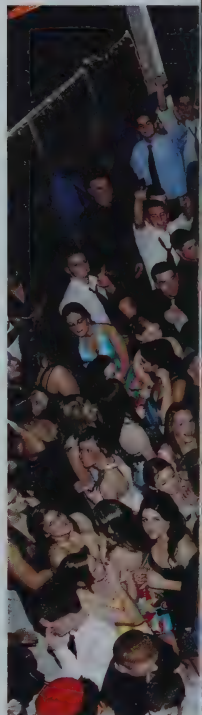

Thank you to Joe Brown for providing several photos.

There were many traditions the week before Thanksgiving that go on at Woburn High. The Turkey Toss was an event put on by Kiss108 where two players from each football team in MA compete to see who can throw and catch a turkey the furthest. Every year Woburn successfully steals the turkey and brings it to our pep rally which goes on later that day during school.

All these events lead up to the huge rivalry Thanksgiving Day Game vs. Winchester. Unfortunately Woburn did not win this year, however we put up a good fight.

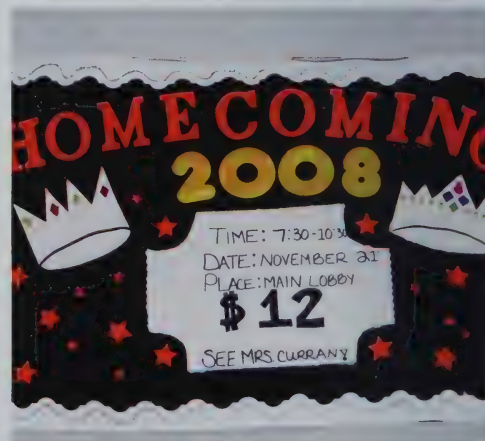

Turkey Toss, Pep Rally & Thanksgiving Day Game

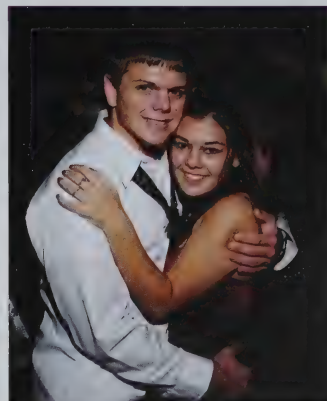

Homecoming was a traditional dance that occurred on every Friday before Thanksgiving Break. It was a semi-formal event that included the entire school. The week before the dance, seniors were nominated to run for Homecoming King and Queen. At the dance every student votes and the winners are announced during the dance.

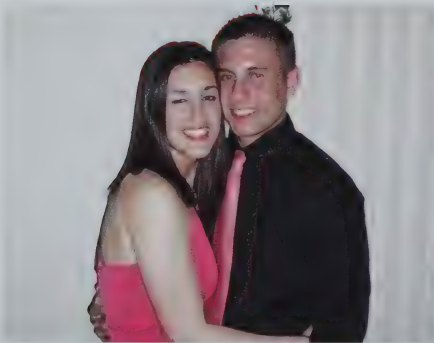

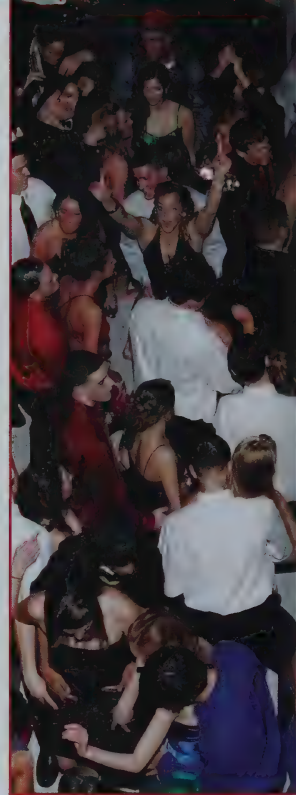

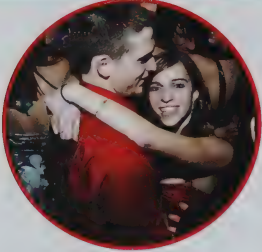

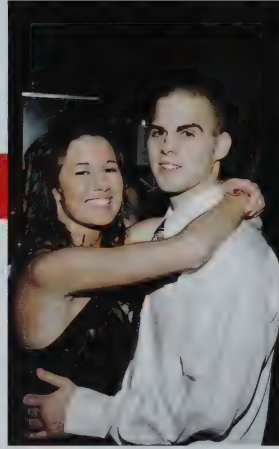

This year the King was Peter Hurkett and the Queen was Kelly Harvey. They shared a memorable dance to the song Time of My Life by David Cook. For all of the Seniors, this was our last chance to get dressed up with the whole school and dance the night away before we stuff our faces with turkey and cheer on our boys one last time at the Thanksgiving Day Game. This year's Homecoming was a great way to mark the end of our high school years.

"I've had the time of my life. No I've never felt this way before. Yes I swear it's the truth. And I owe it all to you"

Homecoming

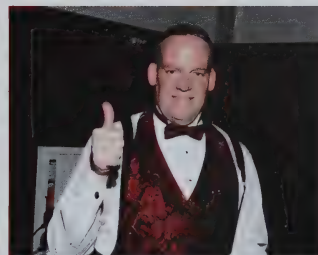

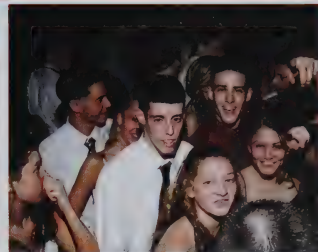

Having a great time.

Does my hair look okay?

Holiday Dance

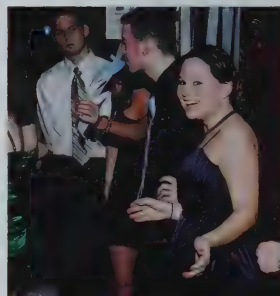

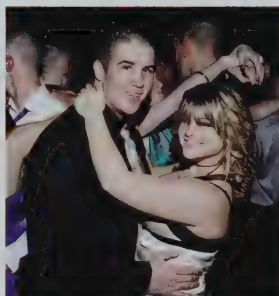

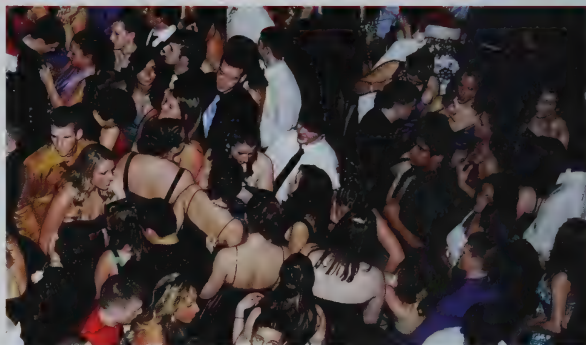

Everyone smile!

The Holiday Dance is a dance for Seniors and their dates. It was held on the second Friday in December. This dance is one of the privileges Seniors get for being the upperclassmen.

All in all this dance was very successful. We danced all night, well, until 10:30 when the last song, which was Shout, was played. D.J. Dan did a great job with the music selections. Everyone seemed to have a really good time. This dance played a big part in making our last year at Woburn High a very memorable one.

What does art mean to you?

"A way to express yourself that can't be judged by other people. The freedom of being able to create something."
-Michael Lau

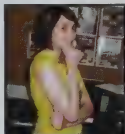

"I think art is a way to express yourself or an idea whether its through painting, photography, fashion, or some other form of art."
-Brittney Ginivan

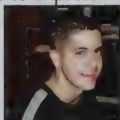

"To me, art is a way for you to express anything you want through various mediums such as drawing, and even movie making."
- Alex Skinner

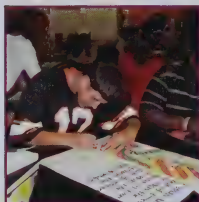

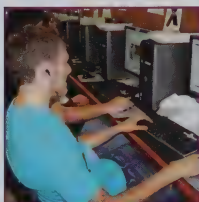

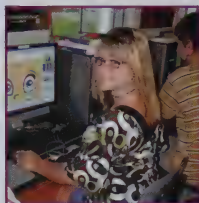

"To me, art is away to let the outside world know who I am, and what I love. Art is my future; I can't go a single day without drawing something. Art is something that's just embedded in my heart."
-Lia Schlieff

"Art is more than a cool picture with color. Art is being able to express how you feel. Any one can draw a picture. It just depends on how creative and inspired you are. Art is my way to escape reality, because when I create a work of art the possibilities are endless."
-Nick Jewett

How does music inspire you?

"There's all sorts of music for all sorts of people. It inspires me like this: crazy dance."
-David Borne

"It gets me to think of life in a different way. It brings me to another world, a world of music."
-Julianne Johnson

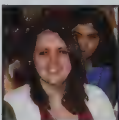

"Music gives me a way to be creative and it's something fun and different to create and play music. Basically music inspires me to be creative and have fun."
-Patrick Connolly

"Music has provided inspiration for me in so many ways. It provides an outlet for me through singing and inner strength. For me, when I am listening, it gives me confidence and hope."
-Cally Sands

"Music doesn't inspire people, people inspire music."
-Jess Foley

There's no place like HOME

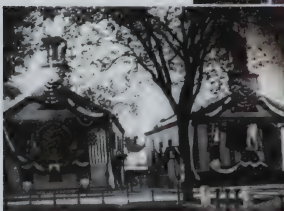

Woburn has been our home for many years. We have all established our own special places to hang out.

Dunkin Donuts is a popular early morning pick me up. Breakers is a perfect place to go for a sweet afternoon treat.

As for dinner, Louie's pizza is a no brainer if you are in the mood for a delicious pizza.

Woburn Common has changed significantly since it has been built while the Public Library has barely changed at all.

In this little city we call Woburn, there are many different place to visit.

Horn Pond is a wonderful area to go and relax while surrounded by the tranquility of nature.

The movies are a great place to go and see the latest flix while enjoying a night out with your friends.

Since Woburn was established, the center has always been a place where businesses choose to reside.

Winter Cheering

The Winter Cheering Teams did an excellent job cheering on our Hockey boys and and Basketball team. They gave the boys the confidence and encouragement to help them work to the best of their abilities each and every game. Michelle, Mary, Amanda and Elyssa led the rest of their team to cheer on the boys and helped to get the crowds going to pump up our players. Without them, our teams would not have had as much encouragement. Thank you to the cheerleaders for all of their support.

Nothing but net

Nice layup Kate!

Girls Basketball

As Kate dribbled down the court with ten seconds left on the clock, she passed the ball to Toni who shot the ball. Just as the ball slipped through the net, making a swoosh, the buzzer went off and signaled the end of the game. Marisely and the rest of the team ran onto the court to congratulate each other on the tremendous win. The girls basketball team had a great season this year. They were all extremely close and grew together as a team.

Boys Basketball

The roaring of their fellow students helped to get them going. As they came out onto the court Mark, Hanell, Cliff, Kurt and Maxon took pride in their team realizing that this game may be the last game they will ever play in their home gym. As they looked out into their fans on the bleachers they helped pump up the rest of their teammates and made the rest of the time on their court worth while. The Boys Basketball Team worked together and created bonds that only come along with playing together as a team.

Why is the puck in our zone!?

Boys Hockey

The puck dropped and the face-off began. Nico easily won the puck and passed it off to Mike. Mike brought the puck up past the blue line and passed to Tim. Tim passed back to Chris who took a slapshot into the top right corner. Woburn scored in the first minute of the game. At that moment Kyle, Sam, Nick and the rest of their team knew that this game would be an easy win for the Tanner Boys. The rink has become a home away from home to the boys on the hockey team. They devoted their time and efforts to the game that requires skill and determination. Through their hard-work they came together for an outstanding season.

Girls Hockey

Sitting in the locker room, all they can hear is the sound of their coach's voice giving an inspirational speech to pump them up. As the zambonie takes its last lap around the ice, Katie, Cal, Kryssie, Becca, Jil, Ashley and Mel lined up their team to get ready to skate. As they stepped onto the ice they smell the crisp cold smell of ice while their skates carve up the freshly cleaned ice. Looking over at the other team they felt confident that this would be an easy victory. The Girl's Hockey Team is by far the closest team at Woburn High. They became each other's second family. Through their crazy team bonding outings, pasta parties, practices and just hanging out with each other this team definitely deserved respect for all the time and hard work they put into each and every moment they dedicated to their sport.

Great move Jeff!!

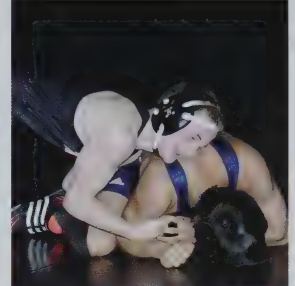

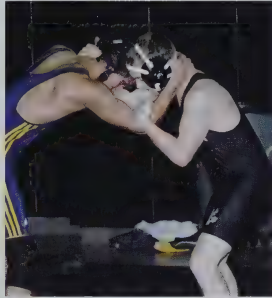

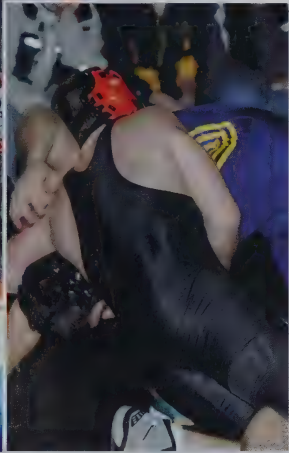

Looking good guys!

Wrestling

The match started. It was a close match-up. Gabby struggled at the beginning but swiftly took her opponent down. The referee got on the mat and counted 1...2...3.. PINNED! Brian Chambers, Tim Scalley, Jim Santillo, Jeff Boggs, Kurt Kabez and the rest of the team came onto the mat and congratulated her. The wrestling team definitely has the reputation of being one of the most difficult sports to complete a season of at Woburn

High. There is no doubt that the members of this team had the determination and will to do their best in and out of practice. They united through tough practices and even tougher matches. They would have done anything for any one of their teammates.

Gymnastics

Flips, turns, bars and music seem to be the lives of Caroline Doherty, Katelyn Caldwell, Jimmy Kenney and Kyle Mcardle. That is not all that goes into this intense sport however. Most people do not know how much blood, sweat, and tears go into making a good gymnastic team. The Woburn Gymnastics Team is outstanding at making their hard work look effortless. Through all of the pasta parties, practices and meets, this team had come together and created an irreplaceable bond of friendship and unforgettable memories.

Don't fall!

Top photo- Boys making a victory lap after becoming State Relay Champs.

Indoor Track

The Girl's and Boy's Indoor Track Teams became a huge family. Both teams came together through thick and thin to defend former titles and to make new and lasting memories. The Boy's Team were State Relay Champions and the Girl's Team beat Reading for the first time in 15 years, even if it was not an official win. This season has given Molly, Jill, Kayla, Laura, Jamie, Taylor, Nicole, Kristina, Sandy, Cecelia, Edgardo, Parth, Kevin, Ryad, Nolan, Ibrahim, and Jacques an incredible Senior Year as members of Indoor Track. Throughout the cold runs, hard workouts, long meets, wins, losses, injuries, tears and joy that they have faced, these two teams bonded in ways that are impossible for any other teammates to accomplish.

The Names Have

”another chapter...”
“Another chapter of my life it’s over...”

ORS Been Called...

A murmur of whispers could be heard throughout the crowd as the ceremony went on. We were almost at the end now. The final names were being called, and the last of my classmates were slowly but steadily making their way across the stage. As I sat in my seat, awaiting the end, I thought about all of the hard work that it took to actually get here. All through high school, I strived to do my best. Whether it was staying up late to write an essay, or cramming in some extra study time before a test, I put in endless hours to get the job done. Reflecting back on the various tests and projects that I thought I would never get through, I remembered the most important part of my academic success: my teachers. They were the ones who pushed each one of us beyond our limits. They extended our knowledge, and showed each one of us the potential that we held within ourselves. Our teachers were the support systems of our educational foundation. They were there for us when we needed extra help. Each teacher had an impact on who we were as individuals. They inspired us to do our best. They made us determined. At the time, the endless hours of homework, impossible exams, and strenuous essays seemed unbearable. Looking back, however, it was evident that all of that hard work paid off. We became stronger, and more intellectual individuals. Because of the efforts made by our teachers, each one of us had become a better person. Our teachers helped mold us into the people that we are today. Without them, we would be nowhere. They were the ones who sat there with us, taking the extra time necessary to see us succeed. They cared about us, and appreciation and praise for their time was well deserved.

As the last student crossed the stage, I looked out into the crowd, and saw some of the teachers that had been there for me when I needed them the most. A smile of thanks crept up across my face as I remembered the dedication that they had shown. They had more of an impact on me than they will ever know. Not only did they influence me, but they influenced every one of my fellow classmates spread out beside me today. I will be forever grateful for their kindness and their support...

A Special Teacher

Teachers come and go but every so often one comes along that you'll always remember one who makes learning an adventure... and who can still remember what it's like to be young and growing up...
the kind who can make you want to be the very best you can be...
Someone you can really talk to,
who really cares
what happens to you...
That person is YOU!

Graduating Staff Profiles

Wishing you all the best!

Robert Norton

Began career: 1966, Bergen Catholic High School, NJ Spanish and History teacher, Head football coach. Arrived at Woburn High in 1993 as Principal.

"I have always felt uplifted working with young men and women. A memorable event that I will always remember is the citizens of Woburn voting yes for a new high school. I am going to miss being around the students, they slow you down from getting old. Several people who have inspired me were John Kelly, my high school principal; Paul Sullivan, one of my best friends growing up; and my Dad. He made education very important to me because of his experiences. This has been one of the best jobs I could ever have had and I thank everyone who has helped me." "In memory of Jamie and Cassie, take of yourself and take care of each other."

Brian Shaughnessy

Began career: 1975, Melrose High School, Math teacher. (Former Woburn High Graduate) Arrived back to Woburn High in 1998 as Assistant Principal.

"I always wanted to become a teacher and be a member of the education profession. I will never forget the day that the people of Woburn voted to fund the building of the new high school. I am going to miss helping the students. In addition, I will miss all the people that I have worked with at the high school. For me, a special moment was being able to hand diplomas to my daughter and son at their graduations." "Stay positive and keep smiling!"

Roseanne Runfola

Began career: 1975, Woburn Public Schools Speech - all levels

"I choose this profession because when I was in high school, there was a girl with a hearing impairment. We got along well. I liked to talk (a lot!) and when I researched speech pathology, I realized that it would be a good fit for me. A special moment for me was seeing the students from Transitional Educations cross the stage at graduation, I was inspired a student in the Transitional Education and Lunch Program. He obtained his citizenship and is holding down two jobs. I'll also miss the staff that I've gotten to know over the years. When I was not here last year, I felt that I had moved away from home. This year, however, I felt that I was home at last. I will miss the students, but I won't miss the commute from Boston everyday."

Nancy McFague

Began career: 1973, Woburn Public Schools Fifth grade teacher Arrived at Woburn High as an English teacher

"I chose this career because I love literature and I enjoy teenagers. During my career, I will never forget 9/11 or the walk out at Woburn High. I am going to miss the staff and the students here. I have been inspired by many teachers at Woburn High especially Mr. William Holland and Elfreda Kallock. It is nice when students come back to thank me, I find that the most rewarding experience." "Do not wish your life away."

Jacquelyn Cavanagh

Began career: 1973, Woburn Public Schools Fifth grade teacher Arrived at Woburn High as a Guidance Counselor

"I chose this profession because when I was younger we always played 'school' and of course I was the teacher. I will always remember going into the cafeteria in middle school and seeing a student with my fur coat on which was being held hostage because I had forgotten to give him his lunch back. I will really miss the relationships that I had with the students. I also enjoyed getting to know them and their families." "To thine own self be true!"

Jack Dillon

Career: 1970, Woburn High School Custodian

"I have been inspired by the Special Education and Alternative Education Department; and all of the special needs students. I will never forget working with the people that I had for teachers. I will miss all the people at Woburn High" "Good Luck!"

Our Staff at its Best

Many members of our staff were former Woburn High graduates who were inspired by one of their teachers to return to do the same. Tanner Spirit at its best!

At Woburn High, there was always a staff member ready to answer any of our questions or offer us advice. They worked together each day with our fellow students and went out of their way to help us succeed. They cared about us, and they were more than willing to be of assistance whenever we needed them. Staff members are more than employees. They are teachers, mentors, and examples of inspiration to all of us.

Mrs. Daubman and Mr. Weston work hard at the blood drive to help out for a good cause. Mr. Shipulski supervising the cafe. Mrs. Christerson helping during Homecoming. Mrs. Joseph makes her way up four flights of stairs to her chemistry class. Mr. Gangi and Mr. Parziale are always ready to act out a play for English.

Our administration staff at the Holiday dance.

Mrs. Patrissi showing a student how to work the stationary bike. Mr. Lennon keeping the school nice and clean. Mr. McGrath and Mr. Alfonse taking time to chaperone the various dances here at Woburn High. Mr. Scarborough having lunch with his students. Mr. Norton addressing the senior class. Mr. Toomey and Mr. McDonough watching the volleyball tournament. Our administration team collecting tickets at the holiday dance. Members of the faculty at the senior prom.

Saying Goodbye...

“no, I’m never...”
“No, I’m never gonna feel like that again.”

ors

A feeling of pride burst from inside of me as the ceremony was finally pronounced over. It was official. I was now a high school graduate. In just a few short months, I would be making my way towards the start of a new adventure. The setting was bittersweet. My eyes started to water as I looked around at my fellow classmates. A few had been crying all along. Now however, the majority of the parents and graduates could be seen with tears in their eyes. They were tears of joy and tears of sadness both present on everyone's face at the same time. I made my way throughout the crowd, congratulating my fellow classmates. Memories were shared, hugs were given, and pictures were taken as we said goodbye for the last time. We were all setting off into different directions, taking different paths. At the beginning of our high school education, we came from different paths. These past four years had united us as one. We had made new friends, and joined new clubs. These clubs allowed us to come together and work with other students who had the same interests as us, or who were working towards the same cause. Together, we held various club activities such as dances and bake sales.

We sponsored events, and donated our time to volunteer work. Whether it was working at the food drive, or walking the pond for Breast Cancer Awareness, we all worked hard to make a difference in the world around us.

Now, as we made our way to the parking lot, we all walked off in separate paths. This time, however, it was different. Today we had taken part in a ceremony that had pulled us all together. We shared a special memory today. This memory was one of pride, full of victorious triumph. It was one that we would carry on for the rest of our lives.

As I made my way to the car with my family, I thought about all the people that I would be leaving behind. It was sad to know that I would be ending such a significant chapter in my life. My high school years had molded me into the person that I am today. I had many memories, good and bad, that I knew I would never forget. As I left today, I took this memory of my school and my classmates along with me. It was now a small reminder of our past, a sentiment that united us for years to come as we lived our lives on many different paths...

Joining a club makes you a well rounded person

The high school experience does not end after the final bell of the day rings. There are many different clubs that meet after school. Each of these clubs sponsor different events and activities throughout the year. These events are not only a fun and enjoyable break from the normal, but many also give back to the community.

Final Pages

The Stages to your Yearbook...at Herff Jones Publishing

Our pages are sent through FedX or electronically to our publisher Herff Jones in Gettysburg, PA. The pages are color corrected, checked for accuracy and layout consistency, and organized. Then it is off to the presses where they are checked for ink consistency, folded, collated, stitched and bound. At the end of these stages, the pages get their final approval, are packed, and shipped to us for your yearbook ceremony in May.

A special thank you to all the wonderful people at the Herff Jones Publishing Company for taking pride in their work and making sure our yearbook is of the best quality possible.

Dear Classmates,

As you can see, creating this yearbook takes hard work and determination. Each of us pushed ourselves to the limit to get this yearbook done. We designed each page with a strong desire to set our precious memories to paper. We made the yearbook to the best of our abilities, with all of you in mind. We are proud of the work that we accomplished. We hope you enjoy the yearbook as much as we enjoyed making it.

Sincerely,
Paula Collins, Theresa Girardi, Jennifer Mutunga,
Jamie Rosa, and Andrea Tierno

*We now look to the future and all that it holds for us.
We are thankful for all the memories that we have created together during our high school years.*

*It's a winding road
It's a long way home
So, don't wait for someone to tell you it's too late,
Cause these are the best days.
There's always something tomorrow.
So, I say let's make the best of tonight.
Here comes the rest of our lives."*

WORLD YEARBOOK

 HERFF JONES

TIGER WOODS won his third U.S. Open title at Torrey Pines, outlasting Rocco Mediate on the 19th hole of a play-off. BILL GATES, Microsoft's chairman and largest shareholder, marked the unofficial end of his career, "retiring" to spend more time guiding his charitable foundation. NASA's space shuttle Discovery landed safely in Florida after delivering a new Japanese laboratory to the International Space Station.

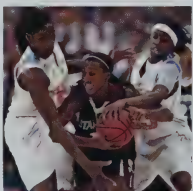

NEW ORLEANS RAPPER LIL WAYNE grew his fan base with free songs, then sold more than a million copies of "Tha Carter III" in a week, the first album since 2005 to do so.

MIDWESTERN FLOODING caused by severe storms that dropped nearly a foot of rain from Iowa to Michigan and Indiana displaced thousands and left at least eight dead.

A TENNESSEE REPEAT made Coach Pat Summitt's Lady Vols the NCAA champions for a second consecutive year; Candace Parker won back-to-back MVP honors.

OBAMA'S NOMINATION

made history when, on June 3, 2008, Barack Obama finally had what he needed — more than 2,118 delegates — to clinch the Democratic nomination and become the first African-American with a viable chance of winning the United States presidency. Obama, an Illinois senator in office less than four years, and New York senator and former First Lady Hillary Clinton had campaigned from coast to coast for months for the right to face Republican John McCain in the Nov. 4 general election.

"THE DARK KNIGHT," a sequel to Christopher Nolan's "Batman Begins," shattered box office records with its July release. In just 10 days, the superhero thriller brought in more than $300 million at the box office, eclipsing the mark held by "Dead Man's Chest" by nearly a week. Filmed in Chicago, the movie's special effects, musical scores and viral marketing added to its allure and mystique. "The Dark Knight" was nominated for eight Academy Awards, including a posthumous nod for Heath Ledger (for Best Supporting Actor as the Joker). Attempting to enhance its Oscar-winning chances and to surpass $1 billion in worldwide gross, the film was re-released on Jan. 23, 2009.

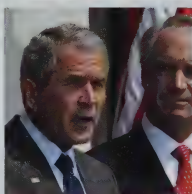

TOUR DE FRANCE

winner Carlos Sastre wore the leader's famed yellow jersey on the final day of the three-week race. The Spaniard won the 95th title by just 58 seconds.

PRESIDENT BUSH

's noted July legislation included lifting a 17-year ban on off-shore drilling and signing a rescue bill into law, hoping to bolster the sagging housing market.

THE OLYMPICS meant national pride, athletic competition, pageantry and more. More than 10,000 athletes competed in 300-plus events in 28 sports at 31 competitive venues, many of which had been constructed specifically for the Olympics. An estimated 6.8 million tickets were sold for the various competitions, and the Beijing Olympics was officially the most-watched television event of all time. Through 16 days of coverage, 211 million viewers tuned in to the Olympics on NBC. Among the American success stories were Kerri Walsh and Misty May-Treanor's consecutive golds in beach volleyball, the gold won by U.S. men's basketball team after a disappointing bronze in Athens and swimmer Michael Phelps' eight golds, which brought his lifetime total to 14 Olympic golds.

Fewer than 150,000 U.S., U.K., Australian and Romanian troops remained on Iraqi soil.

TWILIGHT, the first in a series of romantic/vampire fantasy novels, exceeded expectations at the box office, prompting immediate discussion of additional adaptations.

WIND FARMS continued to spring up at a record pace in 2008 as Americans sought cost-effective sources for zero-emission power. Texas, Iowa and California led production.

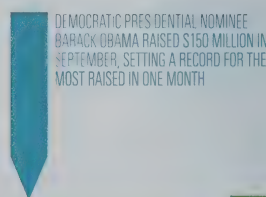

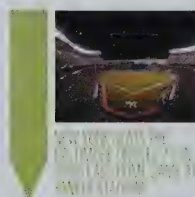

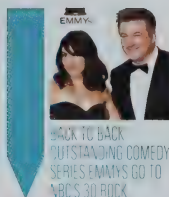

GUITAR HERO AND ROCK BAND continued their battle for virtual musicians; with 4 million units sold (to Guitar Hero's 23 million), Rock Band included drummers.

GOVERNMENT BAILOUTS

were back in the news for the first time since the terrorist attacks of 9/11 crippled the already-ailing airline industry. Beginning with a $30 million assist in the March acquisition of financial giant Bear Stearns by JP Morgan Chase, a series of federal aid bills aimed at preventing collapses of myriad finance and investment businesses were signed into effect. In October, President George Bush signed a $700 billion financial bailout package which would allow the government to start buying up troubled assets from financial institutions caught in the home foreclosure epidemic.

POLLING DAY lines were the talk of the nation. While many states allowed for early voting, the "unprecedented turnout" meant long lines and waits of many hours.

CELEBRATING IN GRANT PARK was a logical conclusion for hundreds of thousands of Chicago residents who gathered to hear the victory speech. The party on "Chicago's front lawn" featured six spotlights piercing the nighttime sky and nine Jumbotrons on which CNN's Wolf Blitzer projected Obama's victory shortly after 10 p.m.

VICTORY SPEECH

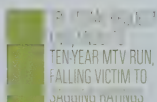

Flanked by his wife Michelle and daughters Sasha (7) and Malia (10), Obama addressed the more than 250,000 gathered in Grant Park and millions more who watched on television. "If there is anyone out there who still doubts that America is a place where all things are possible; who still wonders if the dream of our founders is alive in our time; who still questions the power of our democracy, tonight is your answer," he said. Vice President-elect Joe Biden and his wife Jill shared the stage.

SHEPARD FAIREY's collage portrait of Obama became a popular poster and T-shirt during the campaign. Before Inauguration Day, the piece by the L.A. street artist also hung in the National Portrait Gallery. GLOBAL REACTION generally favorable; world leaders and random citizens voiced support for Obama in media worldwide.
